OUR STORY

From Forest Waste to Premium Craft

Every year, millions of tonnes of dry pine needles accumulate in the forests of Himachal Pradesh, posing a severe wildfire hazard. Born in these pine-scented hills, Eco Thrive Innovations harnesses this vast, underutilised biomass and transforms it into world-class, value-added products for the modern corporate world — giving new life to what was once considered waste.

Circular Economy

Pine-needle biomass repurposed into premium products, closing the waste loop entirely.

Rural Livelihoods

Empowering village artisans and women entrepreneurs with fair wages and skill development.

Forest-Fire Mitigation

Reducing wildfire risk and carbon footprint by harvesting biomass responsibly.

Himachali Heritage

Reviving traditional crafts and Patti weaving for a new generation of gifting.

OUR MISSION

“To transform Himachal Pradesh's pine forest biomass and natural resources into premium eco-friendly products, creating sustainable livelihoods for rural artisans and women entrepreneurs while conserving the Himalayan environment.”

Chamba Rumal

The Chamba Rumal or Chamba handkerchief is an embroidered handicraft that was once promoted under the patronage of the former rulers of Chamba kingdom.

Price on request

Origin and Influences:

Kangra paintings originated in the Kangra region of Himachal Pradesh, India, around the 18th century. They were heavily influenced by Mughal miniature painting techniques, especially under the patronage of Raja Sansar Chand.

Themes and Subjects:

Kangra paintings predominantly depict scenes from Indian mythology, especially the love stories of Radha and Krishna. The lush landscapes of the Kangra Valley often serve as backdrops, with intricate details of flora and fauna.

Style and Technique:

Kangra paintings are characterized by delicate lines, subtle colors, and meticulous detailing. Artists employed the "wash technique" where colors were applied in transparent layers, giving the paintings a luminous quality.
